

Unseasonable Weather Continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A sporadic outbreak of unusual and unseasonable weather continued over Arkansas Monday night and this morning. Just when it appears that the state is about to settle down to a routine summer weather pattern, another productive frontal system develops.

This was the case Monday as a mass of thunderheads boiled up into a squall line that pushed through Central Arkansas before dissipating during the evening.

By Monday evening, three to four inches of rain fell over the White River Reservoir area. Harrison reported 3.56 inches, Elberta Springs 4.15, Gilbert 1.13, Jasper 1.71 and Mountainburg near Fort Smith had 2.47.

Wind gusts up to 44 miles per hour were recorded in Little Rock, but there was no rain. Heavy rain with some pea-size hail hit Morrilton and 40 miles per hour wind and heavy rain was reported on Round Mountain at Conway.

The forecast calls for clearing and a little cooler north to night to considerable cloudiness and mild south portion with showers and thunderstorms. A few showers extreme south portion of the state are expected Wednesday.

High temperatures Monday ranged from 78 at Harrison to 98 at Brinkley. Overnight lows ranged from 63 at Harrison to 72 at Memphis and Warren.

Rainfall reported for the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today included 1.50 inches at Fayetteville, 3.00 at Harrison, .07 at Texarkana, 1.35 at Memphis and .91 at Fort Smith.

One Killed, Five Hurt in Wreck

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — One person was killed and five others injured Monday when a car left Interstate 40 about five miles east of here and struck a supporting pillar for an overpass.

State Police identified the victim as Earl B. Cowing, 72, of Roseville, Mich. Police said Cowing, the driver, went to sleep at the wheel. The five injured, all from Ann Arbor, Mich., were hospitalized at Memorial Hospital here.

Plane Crash Kills One at Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)

A twin-engine Lear Jet Commander, owned by a Kansas City insurance firm, crashed in a gulley-lined, muddy field less than 100 yards from a Drake Field runway Monday, killing one and injuring seven.

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said it was "a miracle" that the pilot, Harold Call, 36, of Overland Park, Kan., a Kansas City suburb, was able to bring the plane down for the emergency landing after both engines flamed out at 41,000 feet about 50 miles from Fayetteville.

The FAA said the craft, owned by the Kansas City Life Insurance Co., was on a flight from Dallas, Tex., to Kansas City. Aboard were the pilot, copilot and six passengers.

Killed was Jack Yeo of Kansas City, who died in Washington General Hospital about two hours after the crash.

The injured, listed as being in either fair or good condition, were Taylor Stone, 45, the copilot, Marshall Chatfield, 35, Edward Laird and Cathryn Bix-

The FAA said the plane, which costs about $500,000, broke into about five pieces as it bounced twice after landing.

The airport tower said the last communication with Call was that he had the field in sight as he came down through some low hanging clouds.

A steady rain had fallen in Fayetteville during the day and a light rain was falling when the plane went down at 5:10 p.m.

past president of the New York State conference of branches, has long argued that the NAACP's emphasis on bringing Negroes into the existing American social system is behind the times.

"You and the board of directors," he telegraphed Executive Director Roy Wilkins, "not only demonstrated this past week an unwillingness to change, but that you are willing to use any and all means to keep the association from being relevant to the many problems of black people."

Monday afternoon Chester Lewis, a well-to-do Wichita, Kan., attorney who succeeded Reed as leader of the militant faction, said he would resign as branch president and legal counsel, and renounce his life membership.

Lewis, 48, accused the NAACP leadership of using money, favors and threats to buy convention votes and said the 2-1 margin by which his proposals were beaten don't reflect the delegates' true sympathies. "We've reached the conclusion that we can't meet the organized force they put against us," he said in a telephone interview.

An NAACP spokesman, in turn, accused Lewis of being unwilling to abide by the convention's decision. "At no time did they have the voting strength that could have passed anything," said Gloucester Current, NAACP director of branches.

Obituaries

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Donald A. Hall, 69, the engineer who supervised construction of Charles A. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis in 1927, is dead. Although he died of a heart attack May 2, his widow said he wanted no publicity and she told only a few individuals. The death did not come to public notice until Monday. Hall was employed by the Ryan Airlines Inc. when he worked on the plane in which Lindbergh later spanned the Atlantic.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Edwin G. Boring, 81, internationally known historian of modern experimental psychology and director of the psychology laboratories at Harvard University for 25 years, died Monday. Boring was a former president of the American Psychological Association.

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Richard Maney, 76, writer and press agent who represented the musical hit "My Fair Lady" and many stage notables over a period of 22 years, died Sunday night. Maney, considered the dean of Broadway press agents, was author of "Fantasy: Confessions of a Press Agent," published in 1957.

Democratic Candidates About Even

By BILL SIMMONS

Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — With four weeks of the campaign left, no Democratic gubernatorial candidate has pulled ahead of his July 30 primary rivals, an Associated Press survey shows.

If the election were held today, authoritative sources report, it probably would be one of the closest in the state's history, with four candidates dominating the voting.

A runoff would be a certainty, barring a major, unexpected tendency among voters now uncommitted to cast their ballots for the same candidate.

A great percentage of voters — some polls rated it at up to 60 per cent — are uncommitted at this point.

The four candidates bunched together for the lead are, in alphabetical order:

—Bruce Bennett of El Dorado, the former state attorney general.

—Marion Crank of Foreman, the Little River County representative.

—Mrs. Virginia Johnson of Conway, wife of the party's 1966 nominee.

—Frank Whitbeck of Little Rock, an insurance company president.

Polls by some of the candidates and polls by others with no direct tie to any of the candidates consistently show these four packed together at the top of the Democratic gubernatorial roster. According to veteran observers of Arkansas politics the four leading candidates draw their main support for these reasons:

—Bennett: His is probably the best-known name among the six Democratic contenders because of his terms as attorney general and his previous race for governor. Voters identify with him partly because they are familiar with his name.

—Crank: He has support of many members of what self-styled reform candidates call the "Old Guard." This, sources said, includes W. R. "Witt" Stephens, a longtime backer of former Gov. Orval Faubus and head of Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co. Crank is an executive of Arkansas Cement Corp., at Foreman, which is numbered among the Stephens-Arkla enterprises.

—Mrs. Johnson: Because of her husband's candidacy two years ago, her name also is familiar to many Democrats in Arkansas. She also draws support from those who, like her husband, U.S. Senate candidate Jim Johnson, favor the presidential candidacy of former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. The polls do not indicate any decided trend among women to favor Mrs. Johnson, although she is bidding to become the first woman governor of Arkansas.

—Whitbeck: His support comes mainly from the Little Rock area where he is best known for his business acumen and his involvement in what has been termed "progressive" state government actions and studies. He also draws support from those who oppose Mrs. Johnson's favoritism of the Wallace presidential bid and he is supported by some who object to the "Old Guard" connections with Crank and Bennett.

ning huge depots and other rear echelon facilities.

As of June 22, the United States had lost 25,367 killed in combat and 157,517 wounded.

The Marines suffered 8,445, or 33 per cent, killed and 55,480, or 35 per cent, wounded.

The Army sustained 15,545, 61 per cent, of the battle deaths and 94,984, or 60 per cent, of the wounded.

The roughly 60 per cent share of total U.S. casualties borne by the Army is very close to the Army's 59.5 per cent of the total worked on the plane in which Lindbergh later spanned the Atlantic.

The Army accounts for 356,000 men in Vietnam, plus about 10,000 in Thailand.

The 84,000 Marines in Vietnam represent about 13.6 per cent of the total U.S. armed forces in Southeast Asia. Thus, their proportion of casualties is more than twice their representation in the war.

The Air Force, with 61,000 men in Vietnam and Thailand, has lost 561, or 2 per cent-plus of the war's combat dead and 1,995, or 1 per cent-plus of the wounded total.

The over-all Air Force continues — as the commission's report totals 15.6 per cent of the U.S. military force in Southeast Asia.

Only a small fraction of the Air Force limit sees combat.

Fee-splitting of SEC Probe Continues

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

A Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The practice of fee-splitting has become the focus of opening hearings in the Securities and Exchange Commission's inquiry into the cost of buying and selling stocks.

Officials of two broker-dealer firms were summoned to testify today on fee-splitting — which the SEC contends is one bar to lower costs on volume transactions — as the commission's probe went into its second day.

Pershing & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and Michael J. Heaney & Co., an American Stock Exchange member, were subpoenaed along with records.

The SEC heard testimony Monday that although the New York Exchange bars rebates on commissions and fees, it permits the splitting of fees ordered by a mutual fund but only among member firms.

Robert M. Bishop, a vice president of the Exchange, denied the rationale behind this is to channel more mutual fund business to member firms.

He said the rule keeps the money "in the member firm community."

SEC attorneys contended, however, that rebates sometimes are hidden in other transactions of member firms and in some cases are passed on to non-members.

Major issues in the investigation are the minimum rate structure fixed by the New York Exchange which the Justice Department has challenged and the problem of fee-splitting.

Before the hearings began, the New York and American exchanges, in an apparent attempt to strengthen their arguments for retaining minimum rates, voted to develop a volume discount and to eliminate fee-splitting which the industry calls give-ups.

The Justice Department wants the industry to fix its fees by competition.

Boswell Says His Foes Convict Selves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gubernatorial candidate Ted Boswell of Bryant charged Monday night that his Democratic opponents "convict themselves of political cowardice."

Boswell thus opened what is expected to be a busy political week in Arkansas with one of the first attacks of the campaign dealing in personalities.

Speaking to the Jacksonville Jaycees, Boswell said his primary opposition was "afraid to face controversial questions like mixed drinks constitutional convention, changes in voting age and many others."

Boswell said the candidates should be "required to disclaim records or associates that tie them to the ancient order of Old Guard politicians." He said this requirement should be made of all except "the nice lady."

Mrs. Virginia Johnson is the first woman to ever seek the governorship in Arkansas.

Two other Democratic candidates, Frank Whitbeck and Marion Crank, went to Springfield to attend opening ceremonies of the Rodeo of the Ozarks, but the event was rained out and rescheduled for Thursday, a day when most of the candidates will be attending July 4th picnics throughout North Arkansas.

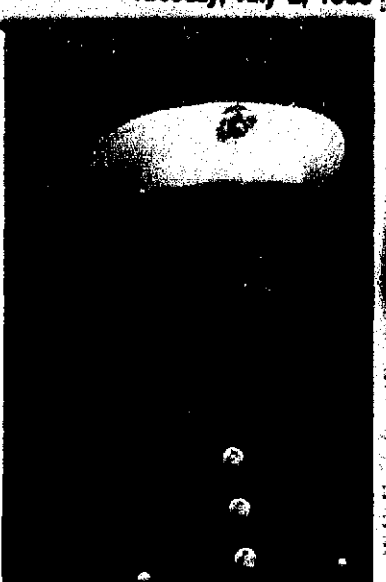

Whitbeck then decided to make a hand-shaking tour of Fayetteville where he told potential voters that he opposed federal gun control legislation but would support a reasonable proposal to prohibit the sale of firearms to "known lunatics, known criminals, drug addicts, alcoholics and minors."

Whitbeck also said he was opposed to forced consolidation of schools, a major issue in the 1966 campaign which hadn't previously been mentioned in this year's race.

Tonight, Jim Johnson, a candidate for the U.S. Senate seat now held by J. William Fulbright, will deliver a 30-minute address on television stations at Texarkana, Memphis, Fort Smith, Jonesboro, El Dorado and Little Rock.

Boswell also charged at Jacksonville that some of the candidates were promising welfare and "old age" assistance payments that "exceed any realistic hopes of fulfillment."

Meanwhile, Ted Reutz, a Boswell campaign worker, announced that a meeting will be held at 8 p.m. today at the candidate's headquarters in Little Rock for all persons interested in working for Boswell.

CHARLES FLEMONS

SAN DIEGO — June 11 — Marine Private Charles S. Flemons, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Flemons of Route 1, Prescott, Ark., was graduated from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here.

He will undergo from two to four weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-caliber pistol are equally stressed, and close order drill instills the traditions of Marine Corps teamwork.

A thorough study of basic military subjects, hygiene, first aid and sanitation, and the customs, courtesies, history and mission of the Marine Corps serve to polish the new Marine's recruit education and prepare him to join in the Marine combat forces.

NO SIGNS OF From (Page 1)

Force Base in Tacoma, Wash.

While pressing for release of the plane and those aboard, U.S. officials reportedly see the incident as a sticky one for the Soviet Union, a situation that will require delicate handling.

If the Kremlin were to allow the plane and passengers to leave at an early time it would likely face condemnation from Red China and other Communist countries.

The plane was carrying men bound for the Vietnam fighting and any move by the Kremlin to allow their early release would likely be criticized by Red China and perhaps other Communist countries as undercutting their North Vietnam friends.

Republican presidential hopeful Richard M. Nixon said the United States should demand "immediate release" of the plane and those aboard.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

THIS PROBLEM WILL RING A BELL WITH MANY TEENS

Dear Readers: The writer of the following letter asked me to change it "so I won't be recognized." This seems scarcely necessary, for most of us, at some time or other, share his problem. Many won't talk about it, fearing as "Bill" does that they're the different ones, and somehow abnormal.

Now read on, and let me know how closely you relate to Bill.

Dear Helen: I'm next year's student body president, active in sports, on the honor roll. I have a fantastic family life which is the envy of all my friends. I'm popular and get along with everybody. As I have quite an ego, this pleases me. Have never been in trouble nor do I expect to be. No problem, you say? Until last week I agreed. Then, a long discussion about life in general started me thinking, and for the first time I saw myself clearly. Helen, I'm like an actor in a play. I seem to have no emotions. Everything I do, I analyze first, tell myself how to perform for the best effect, aware that I can outsmart the situation, avoid being hurt.

I've just gone through two girl friends who attracted me physically and mentally, but once I went out with them I lost interest. Even when we were necking, I'd tell myself what to do next, as this was expected of me.

I'm always playing a role. On the football field, with people, I can't tell right now whether I'm writing this to impress you or whether I really mean it.

I have locked myself in an impenetrable shell that I can't take down, yet nobody knows it's there. I've put on a facade, impersonating the person I want to be, yet who am I, really? For the first time the shell has cracked a little, and I see myself as false, a pretender. I don't believe in anything I say and I question everything I do. And I know that soon the crack will mend and everything will fall back in place in time and I'll be no better. — BILL

Dear Helen: Who doesn't stand on the sidelines and watch himself perform? That you feel guilty about it means the shell has cracked and soon "the person you're impersonating" will be the real you. I'd peg you as an easy-achiever, living in a family which smooths every bump. What you call "lack of emotion" really means "My emotions have never been challenged." They will, friend, they will, now that you've seen behind the facade and have begun the questioning which — I hope — will never end. — H

Dear Helen: My girl friend is very well off and goes to an exclusive girls' college. She is also very pretty. Now for my problem: About a month ago she decided to start chewing tobacco. Since then her breath is atrocious and her teeth are turning yellow. I beg her to stop, but she says she enjoys it and if I love her I'll let her do as she pleases. — WHAT'LL I DO?

Dear What: Send her a spittoon — "To remember me by." — H

Dear Helen: Do you think it is morally wrong for a 13-year-old boy to give a small but sincere kiss on the cheek to his girl friend, in private? — WONDERING

P.S. We don't go together. We're just friends.

Dear Won: No, I think it's kinda sweet. — H

Campus Crowd Plans to Make Demands

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A crowd of 1,000 on the University of California campus, acting after three days of disorders, voted Monday night to confront the City Council with demands to reopen the streets.

Before a curfew went into effect, leaders of the Young Socialist Alliance and the Peace and Freedom party told the milling throng that a demand should be made for a city permit for a Fourth of July political rally on Telegraph Avenue near the campus.

Other demands, said spokesman Peter Camejo, will be for suspension of the curfew and for a civilian board to review actions of Berkeley police.

Later, the campus and Berkeley streets were cleared by officers enforcing the 8 p.m. curfew which was first invoked last Friday night after police broke up a rally at which speakers criticized "De Gaulle government actions against French students."

Officers marched shoulder to shoulder clearing the area the fourth straight night.

At the university, Chancellor Roger W. Heyns said a permit recently granted to the Peace and Freedom party to hold a rally at noon today on the Sproul Hall steps would be honored.

Heyns said only four students have been among the 86 arrested since disturbances broke out Friday night.

193 Athletes to Train for Olympics

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A huge squad of 193 has been invited to the United States men's Olympic Track and Field high altitude training camp as the threat of a boycott by Negro athletes continues.

The Olympic Track and Field Committee announced its selections Monday, the same day that boycott architect Harry Edwards told newsmen in San Francisco that plans had been approved but refused to reveal what they were.

In announcing the squad, the committee named as many as 10 athletes to some events. Officially, the committee said this was to insure sufficient competition at South Lake Tahoe during the training.

Some, however, saw the big squad as a method of having scoreless innings, everyone enough white athletes in training in the event a boycott of the training.

Speed Records Are Set at Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Three speed records have been set in qualifying for Thursday's Firecracker 400 at the Daytona International Speedway and the field still is not complete.

Charlie Glotzbach of Georgetown, Ind., won the pole position with a record 185.156 miles per hour clocking in a 1968 Dodge on Sunday.

Then Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., broke it with a qualifying run Monday at 187.750 m.p.h., only to be followed by Leroy Yarborough of Columbia, S.C., at 187.049 m.p.h. Both Yarborough and Yarborough drove 1968 Mercurs.

Other Monday qualifiers included David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., 184.789 m.p.h. in a 1968 Ford and A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., also in a 1968 Ford at 183.237 m.p.h.

Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., qualified at 182.613 m.p.h. in a 1968 Dodge Charger, and Bobby Jones of Miami, Fla., got in with 170.640 m.p.h. in a 1966 Chevelle.

The race will have a starting field of 40 with $73,000-plus in prize money. The Firecracker 400 starts at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Kaline on First Does a Good Job

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Who's on first? Would you believe Al Kaline?

Believe it or not, there was the Detroit slugger, back from five weeks on the disabled list with a broken right arm, trotting out to first base Monday night and looking for all the world like a latter-day Mickey Mantle.

And there was Kaline, backbone of the Tigers' attack for 16 years, ripping a single to left in the sixth inning to score Mickey Stanley with the tie-breaking run in a 5-1 victory over the California Angels.

The Angels didn't wait long to test the outfield-turned-first baseman. Vic Davalillo, the leadoff batter, grounded to Kaline, who fielded the ball and flipped to pitcher Mickey Lolich covering the bag.

Kaline later caught a foul pop and handled three throws from infielders but was charged with an error when he took his foot off the bag on a throw from third baseman Dick Tracewski.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland tripped Minnesota 4-1, the Chicago White Sox downed Baltimore 6-3, Boston beat Oakland 3-0 and Washington turned back the New York Yankees 3-1.

In the National League, St. Louis defeated Los Angeles 5-1, Atlanta drubbed San Francisco 5-1, Cincinnati nipped Houston 3-2 in 11 innings and Philadelphia outlasted the Chicago Cubs 6-4.

The 33-year-old Kaline played third base for part of one game in 1961 and spent the rest of his career in the outfield. He suffered a broken arm when struck by a pitch in a game at Oakland May 25 and was reactivated Monday afternoon.

Manager Mayo Smith told him an hour before game time that he'd be playing first, a move Smith had been considering for some time.

Kaline was not the only standout as the high-flying Tigers kept their American League lead at 7½ games over Cleveland. Catcher Bill Freehan cracked his 10th and 11th homers, Tracewski hit his second and Lolich, the erratic lefty, hurled a five-hitter and fanned 14, most by a Detroit pitcher this season.

Lou Johnson, the happy-go-lucky outfielder acquired last week from the Chicago Cub, blasted two homers and Sam McDowell fanned 11 Twins as Cleveland beat Minnesota.

McDowell yielded a leadoff double to Cesar Tovar, then pitched hitless ball until the eighth, when he needed help from Stan Williams after Tony Oliva's run-scoring single.

Buddy Bradford, a White Sox outfielder, had a two-homer night against Baltimore. He cracked his third of the season to ignite a four-run first inning after Luis Aparicio reached on an error, and hit another in the fifth.

Aparicio also homered, his third, while Brooks Robinson and Curt Blefary connected for the Orioles. The White Sox capped the opening inning with a double steal on which Ken Berry swiped home while Bill Voss stole second.

Veteran southpaws Dick Ellsworth and Juan Pizarro, a couple of National League castoffs, combined for a four-hitter as Boston blanked Oakland. Ellsworth worked six innings, allowing all four hits, walking five, throwing three wild pitches and hitting a batter.

The Yankees not only lost a game to Washington but two pitchers and their manager, as well. Starter Al Downing left after one inning with a pain in his elbow and reliever Bill Monbouquette, the eventual loser, pulled a groin muscle in the fifth.

Monbouquette was the cause of Manager Ralph Houk's ejection when he laid down a squeeze bunt that apparently gave the Yanks a 2-1 lead. But umpire Jerry Neudecker ruled that Monbouquette ran out of the baseline, called him out for interference and sent the runner back to third, where he was stranded.

The Senators broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth on Del Unser's bunt single, Cap Peterson's triple and Frank Howard's sacrifice fly. Camilo Pascual pitched a four-hitter.

bases-loaded game ending grounder after Willie Smith singled home two runs against Gary Wagner.

Tommy Helms sent Tony Perez home with the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning for Cincinnati's victory over Houston.

Aging Mick Again Named an All-Star

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Aging Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees will take his usual place with the American League All-Stars. But such super stars as Al Kaline and Frank Robinson will be missing in the annual classic with the National League July 9 in Houston.

Mantle, whose 529 homers rank him fourth in the all-time home run derby, was named to the All-Star team for the 16th year Monday as Manager Dick Williams completed his 25-player squad.

Williams, rewarded with the AL managerial berth for leading the Boston Red Sox to the 1967 pennant, went pretty much along with the players' voting in filling his bench.

The fourth, fifth and sixth biggest vote-getters in the outfield balloting were chosen. They were Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins, hot-hitting Ken Harrelson of the Red Sox and young Rick Monday of the Oakland Athletics.

Kaline, the Detroit Tigers' slugger sidelined with a broken arm, was not named to the All-Star team for the first time since 1954. Robinson, Baltimore's 1966 Triple Crown winner, has been plagued by injuries this season.

Mantle and Boog Powell of the Orioles were chosen as backup first basemen for starter Harmon Killebrew of the Twins. Dave Johnson of Baltimore was chosen as the No. 2 second baseman behind Rod Carew of Minnesota.

Other reserves chosen were third baseman Don Wert of Detroit, shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland and catcher Joe Azcue of Cleveland and Duane Josephson of the Chicago White Sox.

The league-leading Tigers will be represented by four players, Wert, catcher Bill Freehan, pitcher Denny McLain and outfielder Willie Horton.

The Twins, Red Sox, Orioles and Athletics each will have three representatives. The Yankees and White Sox have two apiece, with California and Washington only one each.

Other starters voted were third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore, shortstop Jim Fregosi of the Angels, and outfielders Carl Yastrzemski of the Red Sox and Frank Howard of Washington.

The seven-man pitching staff includes McLain, Sam McDowell and Luis Tiant of Cleveland, Jose Santiago of Boston, Mel Stottlemyre of New York, Tommy John of Chicago and John "Blue Moon" Odom of Oakland.

Americans Pull Upsets at Wimbledon

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The United States Davis Cup trio—Arthur Ashe, Clark Graebner and Coach Dennis Ralston—are storming on in the hunt for the Wimbledon title.

"I'm a great believer in togetherness," said Donald Dell, the Davis Cup team's nonplaying captain from Bethesda, Md.

"Did you see our boys applauding when Ashe was beating John Newcombe out there? Clark Graebner, Charlie Pasarell and Dennis Ralston were all at the side of the court leading the cheers."

"That is the way to build up team spirit. And I hope team spirit is going to win the Davis Cup back for the United States."

Mantle Is Humble Over Selection

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Mickey Mantle accepted his selection to the American League All-Star team for the 16th year as a humble elder from another era and suggested the honor should not have been his.

"It has been a big thrill for me every year—it always is—but I think the ballplayers who are playing good are the ones who should go," Mantle said.

Mantle, at 36 the last patriarch of the proud New York Yankees, was named as a backup first baseman Monday by American League Manager Dick Williams of Boston although his batting average of .242 is lower than he has every finished in his lifetime.

A crowd of 15,000 in Washington greeted him Monday night with a louder and longer ovation than it gave hometown hero Frank Howard, the major league leader in home runs. Mantle rapped the first pitch for a sharp single, but went hitless the rest of the game as the Senators won 3-1.

It was exactly seven years ago that Mantle batted in his 1,000th run in a game against Washington. Now he has more than half that many homers. Soon he'll come up to the plate.

SHOWBEAT

By DICK KLEINER

NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—It was more like a picnic—a church picnic, at that—than a movie set.

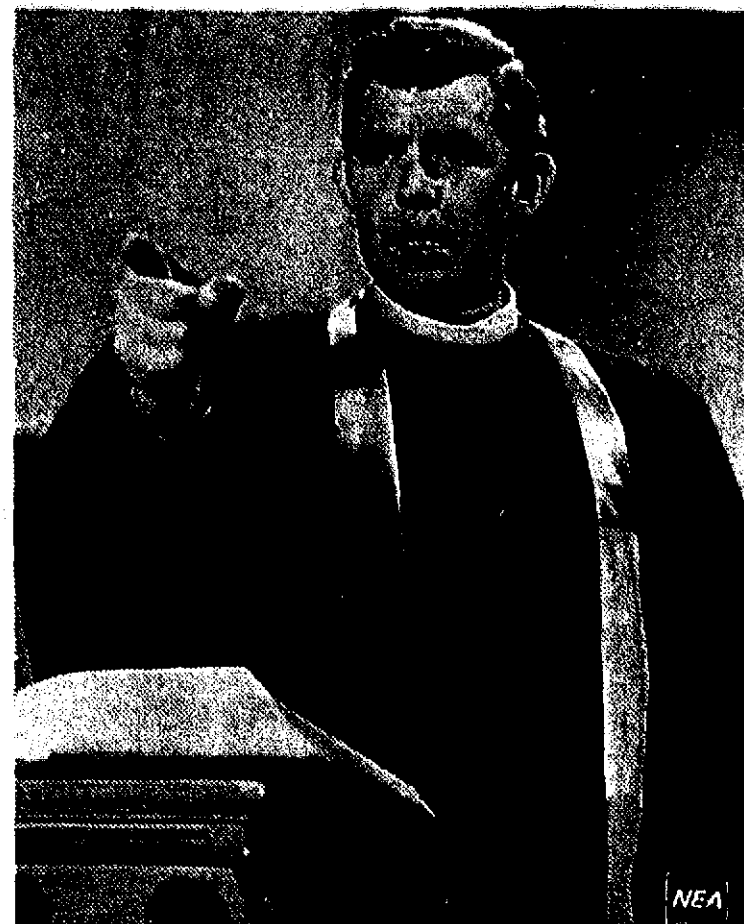

On the Universal back lot, producer Ed Montagne and director Alan Rafkin were guiding Andy Griffith, Lee Meriwether and Gary Collins through a crucial scene in "An Angel In My Pocket." Andy plays a minister in this one, and his church was burning down.

With carefully-controlled flame, it all looked very real. On signal, the fire roared—shooting out windows, climbing the walls, spilling through the roof. Andy and Gary and a young actor named Richard Van Fleet were trying to stop it—according to the script—with a garden hose and a shovel.

Between each take, the three fire fighters slumped down on the grass and relaxed. During one such slump, Lee Meriwether noticed that the hair on Andy's hand was singed. She said he ought to put something on it, some burn ointment or something.

"No," Andy said. "I hate anything on my hands. It's almost a phobia with me. I don't wear a wedding band or a wrist watch for that reason. Drives me crazy to have anything on my hands."

Writers Jim Fritzel and Everett Greenbaum, two funny men with a great capacity for amusing each other, dropped around to see how it was going. They created the character Andy plays and have retained ownership of it. There was talk about a television series for Andy, based on it. "Maybe," said Ev Greenbaum.

A NATIVE OF THE BIBLE BELT, Andy Griffith of Mt. Airy, N.C., finds himself behind a pulpit in "Angel In My Pocket," in which he portrays a minister.

baum. "It would make a good half-hour series—if half-hour series make a comeback."

The actors went out for another go at the fire, then came back again for more talk. The talk got around to Don Knotts. They all knew Don and exchanged Don Knotts stories. The best was Andy's tale of the time Don met Cary Grant, the actor he most admired and had been waiting for years to meet.

Finally, one day in the Universal commissary, somebody introduced them. Said Don Knotts to his hero: "How're they treating you, Cary?"

Then Gary Collins' wife, Mary Ann Mobley, came by to have lunch with her husband, Lee Meriwether, who had been the only beauty around, took mock umbrage at this gorgeous invader.

"No pretty girls on the set," said Lee.

Director Alan Rafkin, a sly one, said, "I'll let you know if a pretty girl shows up," and Mary Ann hit him on the arm. Mary Ann was bubbling.

She's expecting her first child in October and could think of nothing else. She was full of resolve about how she was going to communicate with her child.

"My own teen years were unhappy," she said. "I couldn't communicate with my parents very well. I was the public waterworks. Everybody was dating but me—my father wouldn't let me."

They had one more go at the fire. Andy got too close and burned his hand slightly. Van Fleet was burned on his arms and legs and they took him to the studio hospital for treatment. Rafkin called a lunch break.

Tables were set up in the grass. Everybody sat down and one bench—carrying the writers and Lee Meriwether—was on soft ground and sank slowly. It didn't stop them from eating or talking.

"I try to see every good movie or play that comes along," said Ev Greenbaum. "A writer has to give so much of himself that he needs to refuel, to put something back."

"I don't see anything when I work," Andy said. "I just go home and go to bed. Fortunately, I can rest—I have two well-behaved dogs, some well-behaved kids and a well-behaved wife."

Garden Crisp Corned Beef Salad

2 cups julienne-style cooked corned beef
1 cup chopped fresh spinach
1 head lettuce, separated
1 small onion, thinly sliced
Italian or French dressing
Toss together corned beef, spinach, lettuce, onion and enough Italian or French dressing to moisten. 4 to 6 servings.

Q. What's the name of this meat cut?

A. Center cut smoked ham slice.

Q. Where does it come from? How is it identified?

A. It comes from the section known as ham which is the leg. Cured and smoked, it has the characteristic color, a deep pink. It is identified also by the several muscles in the meat as well as the small round bone.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By broiling, panbroiling, pan-frying or roasting (baking). This meat cut is also a good choice for broiling on an outside grill. When cut one-half inch thick, the ham slice will broil in 10 to 12 minutes; those cut an inch thick will broil in 18 to 20 minutes. Both times given are for the total cooking period. Have the ham slice two to three inches away from the heat whether cooked inside or out. Thinner ham slices, those less than one-half inch in thickness, are best when panfried.

X Rays of Little Use Diagnosing Liver Cancer

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What would cause a person's liver to become enlarged? Blood tests show some evidence of liver damage. Do these conditions correct themselves in time?

A—Common causes of liver enlargement are valvular support by going to three spades.

Had South been really alert he might have reviewed the bidding pessimistically and said to himself: "North has some spade support and he opened the bidding. If he has two aces and both black queens we will have a cinch slam but if he has all this he would not have rebid two no-trump and then given a spade preference."

After that pessimistic review South would have settled for four spades.

Unfortunately, South was an optimist. His partner had opened the bidding. South was going to go for a slam. He Blackwooded and when North's response showed only one ace South had to settle for a five contract.

West was one of those players who wanted everything he could collect. He had listened to the bidding and was sure that he could give his partner a club ruff. West decided to double five spades.

South should have seen what was going to happen to him but sledgehammer rebidders never do. South redoubled, to double his loss.

★CARD Sense★

Q—The bidding has been:

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 1 ♠ Pass

You, South, hold:
♠ A K Q 10 9 8 ♣ K J 6 5 ♣ K 8

What do you do now?
A—While we play two diamonds as a one round force on this sequence we would jump to three diamonds to tell our partner that our hand was almost good enough to warrant an immediate game-forcing two heart response.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid three diamonds and your partner goes to three no-trump. What do you do now?

In general we favor giving your partner a major suit raise any time your hand calls for it. There is one exception to this. When a game forcing bid has been made and we intend to raise our partner later we will sometimes bid no-trump as a warning against getting to an optimistic slam later on.

North had no reason to be ashamed of his opening bid.
He had 14 high card points and three honor tricks in the old Culbertson honor trick count. On the other hand his strength was almost all in the red suits and he had bid clubs and his partner forced to game in spades.

North decided to bid two no-trump to show a minimum hand. South's three club call was quite proper and at this point North showed spade

Driving Accidents Tied to Tempers

By BOB COCHNAR
NEA Automotive Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In 1967, according to the National Safety Council, some 50,000 Americans lost their lives as the result of automobile accidents. Now, this is unusual, because isn't everybody just the greatest driver who ever was?

Forgetting the argument over the built-in hazards of the automobile for the moment, it is widely—and correctly—assumed that driver error is the major cause of traffic fatalities and injuries. But who will admit that he is a poor driver? Isn't it always "the other guy?"

The Sunday Times of London several weeks ago determined that aggressive behavior on the road is a root cause of driver error. To prove its point, it offered a questionnaire called "What Kind of Driver Are You?" Although some of the questions are British-oriented, (there's talk of "zebra crossings," "roundabouts," and such) many are appropriate for Americans.

So: Here are some statements which require True or False answers. Answers are printed at the end of the statement section, but please don't look at them until you're through.

Your Accident-proneness
If you totaled more than 28 points for aggression and more than 15 points for anxiety, you are likely to be very accident-prone. With more than 28 for aggression and less than 15 for anxiety, you may still have a tendency to accident-proneness. The lower your score, the less tendency you have to accident-proneness.

Teddy

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When the late President John F. Kennedy's brother, Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, came to the U.S. Senate in 1963, at least one news agency imagined it was going to have to dog his heels as if it were the Secret Service.

That judgment was quickly altered. The young man with well-advertised family connections at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue did his best to fade into the Capitol Hill setting and take up a normal Senate life.

He conscientiously avoided sight-seeing crowds, and dug in to learn to be what his detractors said he never could be—a good senator.

By the objective test of work accomplished and by the joint testimony of his fellow senators and many hard-nosed observers of Congress, Ted Kennedy has succeeded.

He has gained overwhelming acceptance among his Senate colleagues, young and old. He has worked far harder than most, has willingly performed a great amount of routine Senate service and has involved himself effectively in several major legislative fights.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, Democratic majority leader, once told a high-placed administration Democrat: "That young fellow never shirks an assignment. He's done everything I ever asked him to do."

The story of Ted Kennedy's admittedly heavy Senate labors is in part the story of his briefcase. Toward evening, when he is eager to get back to his family at their handsome new "country contemporary" home overlooking the Potomac River in McLean, Va., he will call to his secretary:

"Am I ready to go now?"

What he is asking is whether his briefcase is filled to the bursting point with mail, documents and research materials pertaining to pending bills, and a raft of other reading matter for him to digest before morning.

Only rarely, after an especially demanding social evening, does he return and say next day:

"I didn't do my homework last night."

He is, in fact, so wedded to the idea of continuous work that when he is traveling, briefcases packed with papers are flown to meet him at various airport stops. Once, when he was about to fly home from a European trip, one briefcase caught up with him in Paris for the journey to New York, and another reached him in New York to keep him busy on the short leg down to Washington.

Without exception, but also without complaint, Ted Kennedy's key staff people, a youthful yet incontestably talented corps, describe him as a demanding taskmaster. He seldom issues imperious commands, but instead gets the message across by asking pleasantly though persistently:

"What are we doing about that teacher problem?"

Has anyone been to that nursing home to see what it was like? ... Do we have those refugee figures? ... What happened to that trade analysis we were going to get?"

The questions seldom stop flowing. He flings them at aides as he is going out of the office door. If, as often happens, someone accompanies him to his car, the senator keeps drumming. ("He transacts a lot of business in elevators," says one assistant.)

Sometimes he will think of something and telephone his staff from a lower floor before he leaves the Old Senate

Office Building. As his car is rolling away, an aide usually is trying to catch one last query hollered from the window. If he has a few minutes at the airport, once again the office can expect a telephone call with a few final suggestions.

"The cross-examination by the senator is usually worst when things are going best," says a key staff helper. "He encourages more out of you than you think you have."

Kennedy does not like to be told flatly what to do. He wants a range of proposals laid before him, which he can then explore with his advisers. Perhaps, because he is sensitive over gaps in his own knowledge at an early stage of his career, he has slight patience with anyone who pretends to information he does not have. An aide comments: "He may not know the answer himself on a particular problem, but he can tell when you're coming through hollow."

(This same impatience can exhibit itself when he is out on the campaign trail. When he pops into a car, he may ask the local driver: "Do you know where you're going?" If the answer is yes but should have been no, the driver may hear a few sharp words.)

Like his late brothers, Ted Kennedy has learned to research the issues intensively, with the aid of top academicians whom he may assemble in his office or his big living room with the great window expanse toward the Potomac far below. He has made almost a fetish of study, as if to prove over and over how wrong were the critics who said at the outset he was not fit to be a senator.

The net of all this effort is clearly measurable by the hardest gauge. After long preparation, he conducted Senate subcommittee hearings on a major liberalizing immigration bill and floor-managed its successful passage through the Senate. Almost single-handedly, he blocked an ill-advised but strongly backed congressional attempt to delay and dilute the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decision as it affected congressional redistricting.

Kennedy came within an ace of upsetting the establishment and getting a flat anti-poll tax ban affixed to the voting rights bill of 1965. He helped push through gun-control changes, nipping away at an issue bitterly fought by many in Congress. Though he lost on draft law reform, Sen. Richard Russell, veteran chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told him, "You caused me a lot of trouble."

His only crushing reverse was on his ill-starred fight to have appointed as a federal judge an old family retainer, Francis X. Morrissey, who was widely assailed as unqualified. Ted conceded he had made the effort at his father's request, but he withdrew the proposal in the face of a critical storm and no one today thinks he suffered much from that episode.

Nothing better illustrates his insistent approach to the issues than his latest trip to South Vietnam this January. Disdaining all the usual fanfare that goes with a senatorial visit, he shook U.S. authorities in Saigon so thoroughly that the military applied the code name "Body Jab" to his on-scene inquiry.

Kennedy sent ahead a team of four lawyers who canvassed the country, compiling data on the refugee and casualty problems which interested him most. They brought back reams of material for him to study. Then his administrative assistant, David Burke, went over a week before the senator came, to line up routes and schedules.

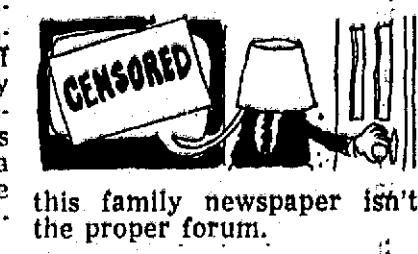

When Kennedy arrived, he traveled the country in civilian attire, hitting six and seven refugee camps a day, sneaking into civilian hospitals at midnight to catch supervisors unawares, questioning hundreds of Vietnamese in city and countryside off the main beat followed by "official visitors." On his return, he digested his findings slowly and then delivered a tough speech that had the wires quivering from Washington to Saigon.

Described by one friend as just as "horribly impatient" as any young man who wants to change the world for the better, Ted Kennedy nevertheless has managed to create his very substantial stir in the Senate and beyond while winning fast friends among his establishment colleagues (whom he also helps in election years) and playing his hard game within the rules and traditions of both the U.S. Senate and the government generally. In a friend's view, he comes through as at once the embodiment of vigorous change and of unflinching respect for the necessary stability of the country's proven institutions.

It sounds like the definition of a man who could not help but be president some day. But no one today can fairly guess whether Ted Kennedy, who has seen two brothers struck down, will even wait to try.

There are some things to be said for practical jokers, but

Wants Costly Loan Program to Save Cities

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey proposed today that the federal government underwrite a multi-billion-dollar loan program to save and perfect the nation's cities.

The vice president advocated the creation of a national urban development bank, supported mainly by nongovernmental funds, to finance projects "especially, but not exclusively, in the inner cities."

Humphrey, campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, outlined the proposal as part of a "Marshall Plan for American cities" in a speech prepared for the City Club.

Starting with an initial appropriation of federal funds, the bank would finance its operations by sales of federally guaranteed bonds to private investors, Humphrey said. It also would charter regional banks to finance development of specific metropolitan areas.

He said the banks would fund nonprofit neighborhood development corporations, guarantee loans for inner city and metropolitan development, offer loans to inner city small-business men and fund housing developments.

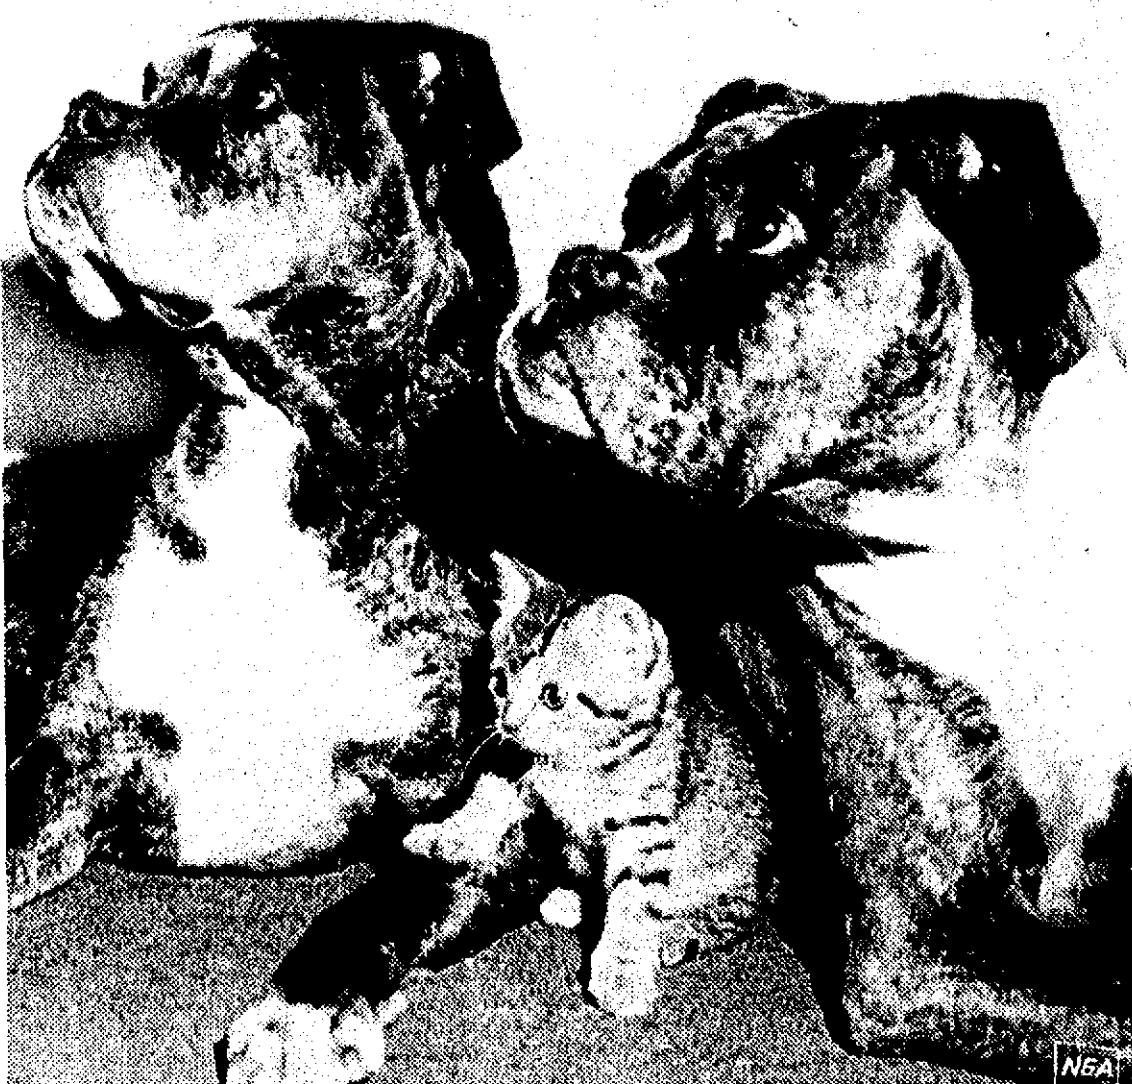

By establishing the bank with an assured source of funds, Humphrey said, long range planning would be facilitated and encouraged instead of being "inhibited by the uncertainties of the annual appropriations process."

He earlier had presented proposals to deal with civil disorders and to expand federal education programs.

Before the speech, Humphrey planned to visit antipoverty projects, including a job program for the city's Spanish-American population and a community clean-up program employing some 400 young people.

As he did with education last week, Humphrey proposed that the needs of the nation's cities be financed with some of the additional billions of dollars to be raised under present taxes because of economic expansion and with funds that will become available with the end of the Vietnam war.

He emphasized that coordination of urban development programs "will cost money—a great deal of it." While he gave

Poor Camp Cost at Least $1.2 Million

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The six weeks the Poor People's Campaign spent living and demonstrating in the nation's capital cost everyone involved, including the public, at least $1.2 million.

no exact figure for the size of the urban development bank, he said "we are talking here about billions of dollars each year."

He said, "This is essentially a program for federal underwriting of loans," then added, "This is even more essentially a proposal to commit ourselves, as a country, to paying whatever is the cost not just of saving, but of perfecting, our cities."

The vice president flew here Monday from Minneapolis with Cleveland Mayor Carl B. Stokes who had joined earlier in the day in announcement of a mayors committee to boost Humphrey's candidacy.

tearing down the shantytown and replacing the grass trampled in the mud-filled 15-acre camp site.

Most of the governmental expenses, $123,603 spent by the National Park Service and the $500,000 incurred by the District of Columbia, went to pay overtime for policemen.

These estimates cover known government and SCLC expenses. There is another category of expenditures that may never be fully known—the thousands of dollars worth of money, goods and time donated by hundreds of people and organizations.

The large cost of transporting the campaigners to Washington was borne primarily by sympathetic businesses, civic groups, civil rights organizations and support committees organized early in the year by SCLC.

Washington area churches donated living space, food and clothing. Doctors, dentists and nurses gave their time, companies gave medicine. And individuals chipped in everything from loaned automobiles to the price of a long-distance telephone call back home.

Jail and court costs for the more than 200 demonstrators arrested a week ago Monday have not been estimated.

works, which would be hard hit economically by a ban on advertising, generally declined comment pending study of the reports.

But Mutual Broadcasting System President Robert Pauley said: "Every advertiser should have the right to advertise. It should be up to the individual medium ... I don't think it's something that should be legislated."

The PHS findings dovetailed with new recommendations by the Federal Trade Commission urging laws to ban all cigarette advertising on television and radio.

Both agencies submitted their findings Monday in separate reports to Congress.

Three of the five FTC members called for the prohibition on all TV and radio advertising, but said if this wasn't done, then "cigarette advertising on television and radio should be limited as to the hours at which it may appear, the extent to which it may appear, and the types of programs on which it may appear."

The three majority FTC members, Philip Elman, Mary Gardner Jones and James Nicholson, were joined by the remaining two commissioners, Chairman Paul R. and Dixon and A. Everette MacIntyre, in recommending a new and tougher warning on all cigarette packages, which would also be required in all advertising.

This would read: "Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer and other diseases." The only warning now reads: "Caution, Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health." It is required to be shown on cigarette packages only.

The PHS report said that findings made since its original report attacking smoking in 1964 shows strong evidence that heavy smoking can reduce life expectancy by more than eight years on the average. A light smoker faces a loss of four years of life expectancy, the report stated.

In addition, the Health Service declared there is evidence of contributory links between cigarette smoking and heart disease.

There was no immediate reaction from the tobacco industry. A spokesman for the American Tobacco Institute said there would be no comment until the reports had been examined.

In the past, the tobacco industry claimed there was no cause-effect connection between cigarette smoking and disease.

The television and radio networks, which would be hard hit economically by a ban on advertising, generally declined comment pending study of the reports.

Ban on Ads for Cigarettes Advocated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tobacco industry is under attack again from the U.S. Public Health Service, which says recent findings indicate heavy cigarette smoking can, on the average, shorten life more than eight years.

Arkansas Snaps 3-Game Losing Streak

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas snapped a three-game Texas League losing streak Monday night when Jerry Davanon stroked a bases-loaded single in the ninth to give the Travelers a 3-2 victory over Dallas-Fort Worth.

With the game deadlocked 2-2, the Travelers loaded the bases on three walks and a sacrifice before Davanon hit the game-winning blow to right field. It was his third hit of the game.

Arkansas scored twice in the first on a double by Boots Day and a sacrifice fly by Mike Christino.

The Spurs scored solo runs in the first and third innings.

Jerry Ruess went the distance for Arkansas, holding the Spurs to two hits while walking three and striking out seven.

In other Texas League games Monday, El Paso outslugged San Antonio 12-11 and Amarillo blasted Albuquerque 19-2. Memphis and Shreveport were not scheduled.

Cites Need of Prison Farm Machinery

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Board of Correction turned to a conference telephone hookup for a meeting Monday night and one of its members unloaded some strong sentiments about the "slow play" job being given the farming operations of the state penitentiary system.

Marshall Rush of Pine Bluff told his fellow board members that they could talk all they wanted about having a bumper $1.6 million crop at Cummins and Tucker prison farms this year, but that if something wasn't done about purchasing some farm machinery, "we may end up with almost as bad a crop as we had last year."

Rush, a farmer, said that the board had authorized the purchase of about $50,000 worth of farm equipment 90 days ago "but as of now" it hasn't been purchased.

"This is the same slow play that the farming operation has been getting all along," Rush said.

"We're in trouble at the farm and I can't seem to get it across to anyone," Rush said. "I'm almost at my hope's end. I'm to the point of almost wanting to blow my top."

"Farming is just a kind of sideline down here I guess," Rush said. "It's almost to the point now where it's a joke."

Rush told the board that the 60-day period that began 30 days ago was the crucial one that would make or break this year's crop, most of which is scheduled for harvest in October.

Rush said the contracts for the equipment had been let and that some dealers had it stockpiled waiting for the order to come through.

He said that every time he mentioned the matter to officials at the prison, he was told that John Haley was taking care of the matter.

Negro politicians have not been responsive to the needs of black communities because they were not elected by black people, he added.

"It's entirely possible that we could have a black political party responsible to the black community and not a melting pot constituency," Ussery said.

Pro Football Going to Foreign Soil

NEW YORK (AP) — Use of an experimental conversion rule, the first match on foreign soil in eight years and 23 inter-league games highlight the 68-game preseason schedule of the National Football League and the American Football League.

The Philadelphia Eagles will take on the Detroit Lions Aug. 11 in the 105,000-seat Aztec Stadium in Mexico City. Only one other NFL game—between New York and Chicago in Toronto in 1960—has been played outside the United States.

The inter-league matches will serve as an experiment for the proposed conversion rule. In place of the regular conversion kick, the teams will have an option of either running or passing for the two-yard line for one point after each touchdown.

Results will be studied to determine if the rule should be adopted for regular league games.

Six exhibitions will be televised nationally, including the Green-Bay-College All-Stars game at Chicago Aug. 3, ABC-TV will carry the Packers-All Stars, with CBS-TV handling the others, including the Mexico City game.

Other TV games will be Chicago vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Mon., Aug. 19; Green Bay at Dallas, Sat., Aug. 24; Minnesota at St. Louis, Sun., Sept. 1; and Baltimore at Dallas, Sat., Sept. 7.

All 10 AFL teams, including new entry Cincinnati, will play at least one NFL foe. Only three NFL teams—New York, Chicago and Green Bay—won't play teams from the AFL.

A proposed game between the Giants and the New York Jets fell through because of the unavailability of Shea Stadium, home of the Jets.

The AFL's regular season opens Sept. 6-8, and the NFL opens its campaign the following weekend.

THE COP

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Jeremiah William Dunlop, a police officer first grade, is at least 25 pounds overweight. He insists it's only 10 or 15 pounds, but then Jerry Dunlop is an optimist about everything.

So what if his stomach does hang a bit over his belt? So what if people do smile at his pot? So what if he's not Charles Atlas already?

"At least," he sighs, "I'm thinner than I used to be."

That's Dunlop the cop for you. Everlastingly rosy. He's 36 but not the least worried about 40. His hair is turning gray but he chuckles that it's still all his. His salary doesn't cover his bills but, as he sees it, "there are a lot of people who have no salaries at all."

Even on the job Dunlop is a Pollyanna. His beat is Harlem and there is none other like it in the nation. One sees it all—sadism, savagery, masochism. Every day, every hour, the name of the game is violence.

An angry wife tosses lye in her husband's face. Result: An eye burned out of its socket.

A drunk fires a pistol out of his apartment window, "just to hear the noise." Result: A sleeping four-year-old is hit and never wakes up.

A merchant mistakenly gives short change for a 50-cent purchase. A quarrel erupts. Result: The customer stabs the storekeeper in the heart.

A youth, 14, hooked on drugs, is caught stealing welfare money from the family purse. Result: He uses a chair to crush his mother's skull.

Crime is here without measure. In Dunlop's precinct, the 32nd, there is more street horror in a week than most cities of comparable size (110,000 pop.) experience in a year. In the first 120 days of 1968 the precinct had at least 15 homicides, 15 rapes, 855 robberies, 1,042 burglaries.

And still Dunlop is optimistic.

"I don't mind this beat, really," he says. "Oh, it's a discouraging enough area, all right. It's crowded, it's dirty and it smells. Trouble is part of the landscape for sure. Every other person you see has a police record.

"But that's not the whole of Harlem. That's only part of it. There is good here also, don't forget that. There is a lot of good here also."

The assertion, of course, is undeniable. There is good in Harlem. But unfortunately counting to 10, and not clubbing a citizen on the head.

A man stops the cop and asks for a dollar. "I'm in a crap game," he says. "Gimme a buck. What's it to you, anyway? Come on, gimme a buck."

Quietly, Dunlop refuses.

"What's the hell's the matter, cop," the man continues. "What you got against black people? What's the matter, you don't like black people?"

Legally, the man can be nailed. Dunlop, however, avoids arrest. He bites his lip until finally the man goes away. He explains that the offense was minor, that an arrest could have led to bigger trouble, perhaps violence.

And as for his abused pride? "I'm a cop," he says simply. "I'm used to it."

'Petty Thievery Will Be Big Tonight'

It is Saturday night, the worst of the week in New York's Harlem. For policeman Jerry Dunlop it's eight more hours of walking a six-block beat... stepping in vomit, smelling tenement urine, and swinging a fiber-glass nightstick.

Events are off to rapid start.

On Lenox Avenue a man is stabbed in the head during an argument. Police speculate that if the man lives he will refuse to sign a complaint against his assailant. The explanation is that the man will be too frightened.

On 144th Street a woman has a heart attack in a fifth-floor room. So crowded is the street, so winding the stairway and so cluttered the room that police spend 30 critical minutes just to remove her to the ambulance.

On Eighth Avenue a small boy waits outside a grocery store. A woman comes out. The boy grabs her purse and scrambles out of sight. The kid may need the money for dope, or to satisfy a parent's malicious demands.

"Petty thievery will be big tonight," Jerry Dunlop says. "Yesterday was Mother's Day in Harlem. That's what they call the arrival of the welfare checks. And if the husbands don't steal them, the purse snatchers will."

Dunlop mops his brow. "All the crooks," he smiles, "think welfare payments should be higher."

The cop walks on. He pauses to pick up a drunk from a gutter. "Hi ya old buddy cop," the drunk slurs. Dunlop helps him to his feet. "Hi ya old buddy cop. How's the hell is it?" The drunk wheels and heads back for the bar.

On 143rd Street Jerry Dunlop opens the door to Shapiro's Furniture Store and waves to the manager, Leo Dansky. The manager is putting out new stock. He explains that all of his stock is new and recently uncrated.

"We lost everything in the riot," he shrugs.

The "riot" followed the death of Martin Luther King. Officer Dunlop says that people streamed into the store and stripped it clean. He adds that, "the police were given orders not to touch the looters, and so they had a free run."

Why such orders? "The mayor," says the cop, "felt that police action would create larger disorders. We felt different, of course, but we can only carry out the mayor's orders."

At the mention of the word "mayor," store manager Dansky cringes. He has good reason. He says that he lost $30,000 worth of stock but he can't collect on his riot insurance, "because the mayor won't call the looting a riot."

What does the mayor call it?

"A disorder or something," says Dansky. "You should have seen that 'disorder.' Dozens of people in Harlem are out of business now. The rest of us have had to put steel garage doors over our windows for protection."

Testaments to Dansky's assertion are everywhere in this neighborhood. Several stores are boarded up and abandoned. One liquor establishment has replaced its all-window front with walls of foot-thick concrete blocks.

And as for the merchants not hurt in the riots?

A couple of doors up from Shapiro's Furniture, Mrs. Gertrude Kahn, owner of a variety store, says: "I can't buy insurance at all any more. I'm helpless. All I can do is go home each night and pray nothing happens."

Dunlop the cop nods sympathetically... as if to say, "Me too."

He blames the "kids" for much of the trouble. Yet he says "there's a lot of good here, too."

A Homicide On 142nd Street

The evening continues. Shortly before dusk, Jerry Dunlop is summoned to a building on 142nd Street. Kids are playing skip rope outside the entrance, a mother is nursing an infant, old women cool themselves on chairs.

"What happened?" Dunlop asks another cop.

"Homicide," the officer answers.

A young girl is singing "Sock it to me, baaaaby!" A couple in a parked car is necking furiously. An old man is checking bottles in the street, searching for a shot of "Twister," a wine selling for 50 cents a pint.

Inside the building, the homicide victim lies in a furnace well. His head and neck are pockmarked with punctures. A witness says that a wine tripped the victim, then hit him repeatedly with a 20-pound poker.

Several detectives are investigating. They question the witness, get two or three different stories out of him, and record the pertinent.

It is all done quickly and inconspicuously. No guns are drawn because, even though a killer is loose, the police are not allowed revolvers unless directly threatened. No immediate search is conducted because unless a cop has a warrant or an invitation he cannot enter private property.

So the cops leave... to other murders, to other frustrations, and, they complain, to a criminal populace that increasingly uses the law to break the law.

And the killer?

"Oh," says a detective, "he'll probably turn himself in after awhile. When he sobers up he'll start thinking about pleading manslaughter or something. He'll figure that the most he'll get will be a few years. And he'll be right, you know. Killing people isn't a big thing in the courts anymore."

A kid runs up and stares at the belts of departing policemen. He is counting their bullets. A woman in a brassiere drops cigarette ashes from a third-story window. A young man yells, "Arrest me, arrest me, I'm guilty."

Jerry Dunlop looks wearily around.

"Homicide doesn't faze them," he says. "Nothing fazes them. Violence is a way of life for most. The only wrong thing to do is to get caught."

Crime is closing in on Dunlop. He can reach out and touch it at any time. Yet he doesn't. Because, he says, as the hoodlum element around him continues to grow, his shrink.

"What," he wonders, "are things coming to?"

On Sunday, Jails, Churches, Bars Are Full

It is Sunday on the west side of Harlem. It is the wrap-up of the weekend here and a day of contradictions. Jails are full, churches are full, bars are full, parks are full and streets are full.

For Patrolman Jerry Dunlop, a pink-faced father of four children, it is also a day of contradictions. His private and professional thoughts are mingled.

Tomorrow is Dunlop's day off and he plans to spend it inspecting a home he's buying on Long Island. It's a colonial with four bedrooms. He says it's costing $20,000, instant debt, "but it's worth it."

Dunlop has spent all of his life in apartments. Presently he rooms his wife (a red-head), his four kids (age 2 to 12) and two television sets in a three-room flat that lies directly under the jet noise at Kennedy Airport.

To pay for the new home Dunlop has taken a second job. He drives a taxi 20 hours a week to beef up his $9,300 salary. He saves hard. The move is important.

"This city," he says knowingly, "is just no place for people to live."

About 5 p.m. Officer Dunlop gets the word from Precinct that some of the police call boxes on his beat may be booby-trapped... "wired to explode when used." It may be only rumor, but who knows? Precinct orders extreme caution.

The call box threat has occurred here before, as well as similar intimidations. The police know who is to blame, Says Dunlop: "It's the kids."

Kids, 10 to 18, male or female, are quite obviously the chief worry in Harlem, among both police and private citizens. They are the more militant, the more irresponsible, the more energetic, and the more unpredictable.

"A youngster is easily panicked," explains Dunlop. "If you corner him you never know what he'll do. I'd rather face an adult with a gun any day."

On 142nd Street, near Forman's Cut Rate drugstore, several teen-agers grow suddenly silent as the cop walks past. Dunlop doesn't look at them. He refuses even the slightest provocation. Even so, the kids giggle.

Often, however, they do more than giggle.

Three times this day Dunlop the cop experiences degrading hooling by rough-necks. One 12-year-old with a toy pistol points it at Dunlop's belly and goes "bang, bang." A young girl gives him a suggestive dirty gesture.

The officer reprimands none of them, warns none of them. They are, he explains, free to abuse him verbally, bait him, spit at him, or worse.

"Even if one of them comes up and socks me," says Dunlop, "I might not pull him in. Socking a cop is a misdemeanor in Harlem. If he resists arrest, that's something else, but socking a cop is only worth a little detention."

Actually, in the eyes of the law, any juvenile-committed crime in Harlem, from socking a cop to murder, is in reality only a minor offense. According to a new (1967) penal code here, no one under the age of 16 can be tried as a criminal or imprisoned as such for ANY crime, regardless of its severity.

This means that the dope-addicted 15-year-old now leaning against that post on 140th Street is virtually immune to regulation punishment. He can stab Dunlop in the throat and never serve a day in a criminal's jail.

"And," says Dunlop, "don't think they don't know it..."

One youngster, male, kidnaps a schoolgirl in a neighborhood campus. He drags her to a lavatory and forces her into indecent acts. No criminal trial.

Another youth, female, is caught luring nightlifers into an apartment where the victims were robbed, then tortured. No criminal trial.

A third youth, male, has been robbing, burglarizing, purse snatching, mugging and vandalizing since he was 10 years old. No criminal trial.

Where Is the Law in Harlem?

Dunlop shrugs sadly at the examples and crosses the intersection near Sobell's Pawn Shop. An automobile almost runs him down. A record wails from a music store. A wino loudly announces his candidacy for president.

Young men cluster together in gutter conferences. Experience indicates that every second one of them has a knife in his pocket. Most of the others have either guns, ice picks, blobs of lead, et cetera.

Obviously, the laws do not rule this neighborhood. The troublemakers do.

Opposite the pawn shop a stout, harried woman stops Officer Dunlop and pleads for his help. The cop courteously asks her what the trouble is.

"I was there with my boyfriend," she says rapidly. "Those kids came up and gave us trouble. My husband has been dead now these eight years and, oh Gawd, I don't know what to do. I had a dollar on me and, but, those kids stood there in the door and I ain't got the dollar and..."

"Please, ma'm what's wrong?"

"I'm all alone you understand, with my husband dead these eight years. I ain't got that dollar. I don't got no money. Those kids, I don't know, they musta took it. I'm tired... and... my husband been dead these eight years..."

"Are the kids bothering you, ma'm?"

"Yes, um..."

"Do you want to go home?"

"Yes, um..."

"Do you have bus fare?"

"Nostuh."

The policeman calms the woman. He hails a bus and puts her aboard free. She is still babbling with fright as the bus groans back into the traffic.

"Kids," Dunlop snaps biting terly.

He looks at his watch. It's almost quitting time and on the face of it Harlem is quieting for the night. Some human clusters remain, but the streets are emptying. Tenement windows are popping open for the evening air.

Behind the blackness, however, activity is just beginning. Robberies are being plotted, disorders being planned. What will it be next? A stickup, a rape, perhaps a riot? Crime marches on. In Harlem it pays.

Patrolman Jerry Dunlop studies the street, then approaches a police call box. It's time to check in with Precinct. His orders are to do it every hour.

He hesitates at the phone. Is this one booby-trapped? Click.

"Hello, hello, hello. Hello, switchboard? This is Dunlop at 33 and 34. What? Oh, yeah. I guess so. Everything seems pretty quiet right now."

Pryor Won't Jeopardize Sportsmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., said Monday that the federal government has no business in the field of gun registration or licensing and that the individual states should make ultimate decisions on the issue.

"I have maintained a consistent position that I will not support any legislation in this area which will jeopardize our sportsmen or those law-abiding citizens who desire to own a gun for the protection of themselves or their family," Pryor said in a letter mailed to 2,000 of his constituents.

Pryor said that any federal legislation in the field should be "strictly limited to the interstate mail order traffic of guns."

"Gun ownership for legitimate purposes has always been a privilege accorded to all Americans," Pryor said.

"It is the individual states which know their own respective situation and conditions much better than the federal government, and which must ultimately decide this issue," he said.

Pryor said he would support legislation making it a federal offense for using a gun in the commission of a crime.

Efforts to Block Fortas Weakening

WASHINGTON (AP) — An effort by 19 Republican senators to block President Johnson's two Supreme Court appointments has been weakened by a pledge from Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen to vote for confirmation.

Dirksen says he will support the appointment of Abe Fortas as Chief Justice of the United States and Homer Thornberry as an associate Supreme Court justice.

"The nominations were made in good faith, in conformity with the Constitution, the men nominated are qualified, and they have been found to be fit by the American Bar Association," Dirksen said Monday.

He also told newsmen he believes the Senate has the two-thirds vote needed to cut off a filibuster against the confirmations threatened by at least two Republican senators.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., a leader of the GOI drive against the appointments, said he was ready to filibuster and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., announced Monday he also is prepared for one.

Thurmond said Fortas has a reputation "as a fixer" and as an associate justice has aligned himself with "the radical wing of the court."

He also said he believes there was collusion by President Johnson and retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren to keep the next president from naming Warren's successor.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, meanwhile, announced it will begin public hearings July 11 on the nominations and will question Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark on whether a vacancy actually exists on the court.

The question was raised in the committee last week on the confirmation.

CUBA RETURNS From (Page One)

relatively calm." Radio Havana, monitored in Miami today, said Cuban authorities were investigating the hijacking, second in 48 hours and the seventh airliner diverted to Cuba this year.

"To ensure a greater security in the return of the passengers, they will fly today to the United States in the regular flights between Varadero and Miami," said the Cuban radio. It said they would travel the 90 miles from Havana to Varadero by bus.

Normally, two flights a day run from Varadero to the United States carrying Cubans who want to leave Fidel Castro's island. Today a third flight was added to the schedule.

The crew and passengers of the airliner spent the night in the terminal at Havana's airport. Simonson said he argued with Cuban officials that a take-off would be safe, then decided further argument would be futile. Simonson said he and an official of the Swiss Embassy, which handles U.S. affairs in Cuba, told passengers they had to stay behind.

"It was pretty hard to tell them," Simonson said, "but they seemed to take it pretty well."

In Washington, a State Department official described the Cuban action of holding the passengers back as unusual and said, "We are energetically pursuing the matter through the offices of the Swiss Embassy."

The plane left Cuba at 5:58 a.m., EDT, and landed at Miami International Airport 39 minutes later.

Headquarters of Northwest Orient Airlines in Minneapolis listed the other crew members as First Officer Richard Conrad, copilot; Second Officer Kenneth Warras; and stewardesses Nancy Lee Stevenson, Barbara Schlosser, Margerite Schmidt and Miss Burt.

Wildlife Group Critical of G&F Board

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The president of the Arkansas Wildlife Federation has criticized the state Game and Fish Commission for failing to take a position on the issues of proposed gun-control legislation and a proposal to dam the Saline River at Benton.

Robert A. Apple of Dardanelle told a news conference Monday that the federation's board had approved resolutions opposing both proposals.

"The commission should be for or against, based on the best interests of the hunters and fishermen," Apple said. "If it prefers to remain neutral, the sportsmen are entitled to know why."

Regarding the Army Corps of Engineers' proposal to dam the Saline, Apple said that the commission was "neglecting its obligations to the sportsmen of the state" by failing to take a stand.

However, one member of the federation's board, Kinder Bishop of Little Rock, said he agreed with the AWF's policy statement but could not criticize the commission.

"I'm not in a position to condemn the commission and would not," Bishop said. "I don't agree with any remarks about the commission."

Apple, in a prepared statement, said the federation did not believe "firearms controls, restrictions or even registration are of paramount importance in solving the crime problem."

The organization, he said, had interpreted a statement by President Johnson as inferring that "sportsmen and their guns are the chief cause of firearm crimes."

He quoted the President as having said that a state's failure to meet federal standards for licensing and registering firearms in two years would subject the state to the loss of federal wildlife funds.

Strick Gun Controls Called for

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has issued a new call for strict gun-control legislation today as he opened a four-state Western campaign swing.

Flying here from New York, the Republican presidential hopeful issued a statement urging Congress to enact President Johnson's firearms legislation before it adjourns.

"The lives of innocent people are at stake," he declared. "Strong, workable gun-control legislation is urgently needed in the battle to control crime and lessen violence."

Before leaving his home state Monday, Rockefeller distributed a white paper setting forth his plan for a new "good neighbor" policy for the Western Hemisphere.

Among other things, he proposed to establish a small "peacekeeping force" within the Organization of American States OAS, to bring Canada into OAS and to create a Latin-American common market.

Rockefeller, who administered the original "good neighbor" policy for President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration in the 1940's, contended that in recent years "we have neglected Latin America and our neighbors feel it."

The governor set for himself a heavy schedule of speeches and meetings with GOP convention delegates and party leaders in Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon between this morning and Wednesday afternoon.

Then he planned to fly to Hawaii for a Fourth of July week-end rest, with a bit of campaigning intermingled.

Mrs. Rockefeller flew to the islands last week for a vacation with the four children of her first marriage. She is waiting for her husband to join them at Mauna Kea, a hotel resort owned by the Rockefeller family.

The Euphrates and the Tigris were the two rivers which watered the Garden of Eden.

A 3-DAY COOLING SPECTACULAR!

Remark by Preacher Attacked

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Kenneth Adair, vice president of the Garland County NAACP, has attacked a remark by its president, the Rev. Thomas McVeigh Smith, that the local chapter lacked leadership before he came to Hot Springs.

"I think Father Smith's reflections on the Negro leadership here is unfair for those of us who have been campaigning for civil rights years before Father Smith came," Adair said Sunday.

Father Smith, a Roman Catholic priest who was recently transferred from here to North Little Rock, said in an Associated Press interview last week that apathy had killed the Hot Springs chapter before his assignment here.

"The Negroes came to me—I remember L. C. Bates and Daisy Bates came, too—because they couldn't trust their own leaders in Hot Springs," Smith said.

Smith also said he had no intentions of resigning the post. His term expires in January 1969. But Adair said he would contact Bates in an effort to seek a new president for the Garland County chapter.

"The NAACP will continue to function here regardless of Father Smith," Adair said. "We categorically went along with all of his programs, even though many were irrelevant to civil rights—the main and only purpose of the NAACP."

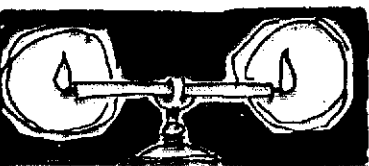

"As a civil rights leader, we are not concerned with enforcement of liquor and gambling laws," Adair said. Smith actively campaigned against liquor and gambling violations.

Convict Is Released Due to Health

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—Pasquale A. Massi of Cherry Hill, N.J., who was convicted of conspiracy to commit sodomy and attempted bribery, has been released from prison because of the convict's poor health.

U.S. District Judge John E. Miller signed an order Friday placing Massi on three years probation after two panels of physicians signed affidavits testifying that Massi's health was extremely poor.

Massi was sentenced to three years in prison after being convicted Jan. 25 of conspiracy to commit sodomy with a 16-year-old Negro boy in Hot Springs National Park and trying to bribe a National Park ranger with $200.

Nixon Has Almost All Votes Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon has nearly three-quarters of the 687 convention votes required for a first-ballot Republican presidential nomination, counting only delegates who had taken a stand in public.

Assuming Sen. John G. Tower was, as he believed, taking most of the 56-vote Texas delegation along on his shift from favorite son status to the Nixon column, the former vice president would be over the three-quarter mark.

With Texas listed uncommitted pending an individual count, a tabulation by The Associated Press showed Nixon with 478. The count covered only delegates assigned to Nixon by presidential primary vote, pledged at the time they were selected, or picking him in an AP poll.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller trailed on the same basis at 192.

Both had a pool of 317 delegates backing favorite sons and 309 who were at least ostensibly uncommitted, to work on before roll call at the convention opening in Miami Beach Aug. 5.

Fewer than 100 of the 1,333 Republican delegates remained to be selected.

In a similar AP tabulation Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey had 640½ votes to 401½ for his Democratic rival, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. At the Democratic convention beginning in Chicago Aug. 26 it takes 1312 to win.

The Democratic competitors had an even longer list of fence riders to cultivate. There were 514½ votes back of favorite sons and an outsized pool of 771 otherwise uncommitted.

The big group in the latter category were 151 in California who still had not taken a stand since the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy freed them of a primary election commitment, 103 in Illinois mostly waiting on word from Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, and 99½ in New York, including 49½ whose stand had not been determined since they were picked in state convention. Dozens of other former Kennedy delegates were also uncommitted.

Gas Forces Evacuation in Carolina

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — More than 1,000 families from the Cumberland County community of Manchester and personnel from the Pope Air Force Base operations center were evacuated today as deadly chlorine gas spread over the area.

The gas seeped from a leak in a line at a nearby water purification plant.

Six persons were admitted to Womack General Hospital at Ft. Bragg, suffering from gas inhalation. Their condition was unknown immediately.

Two of the victims were identified as Walter McDougald, a 45-year-old laborer at the plant, from Dismal, N.C.; and Miss Mary A. Thompson, 19-year-old plant secretary from Fayetteville.

The Ft. Bragg public information office said there were three large trailer courts in the immediate area of the purification plant and "these have been evacuated. At least 1,000 families are affected."

Young Turk Militants Leaving, NAACP Likely Glad to See Them Go

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The "Young Turk" militants whose aggressive demands nearly broke up the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's annual convention this past week are walking out of that moderate civil rights organization.

They hope to forge a new link between themselves, the Congress of Racial Equality, The Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

NAACP leaders are probably relieved to see them go. The leaders weren't worried about the personal militant threat to their control. Despite loud boasts, the Young Turks failed this year for the fourth straight time to get any of their resolutions close to a passing vote.

But NAACP leaders, who have a deep faith in orderly procedure, were agitated at having to call Atlantic City police onto their convention floor to end a noisy, scuffling demonstration.

That was also the act that triggered the walkout of militants who say the convention tolerated worse disruptions when staged by friendly delegates.

The first to leave was Dr. Eugene T. Reed, an NAACP board of directors member for the past five years, who revealed his resignation Monday with a blast at the "Nazis-like atmosphere of strongarm techniques . . ." at the convention.

Dr. Reed, an Amityville, N.Y., dentist and a two-time NAACP president, said he was resigning because of the "Nazis-like atmosphere of strongarm techniques . . ." at the convention.

The extrajudicial order was granted by Chief Magistrate Legal sources said Ray would appeal the decision.

The magistrate granted Ray legal aid to pursue his appeal in a higher court within the required 10-day deadline.

Ray received the magistrate's decision without any outward show of emotion.

He was immediately led from court, still surrounded by a cordon of Scotland Yard detectives, and taken back to his maximum security jail at Wandsworth Prison in south London.

44 Million Americans Are Now Amateurs in the Field of Music

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Americans are becoming more musical. We now have more than 44 million amateur musicians, compared to 20 million in 1950. One in every 4.6 persons plays an instrument. More than twice as many play the piano as the guitar—23.5 million to 11 million. But, alas, the number who can still strum a ukulele has fallen in 10 years from 1.5 million to a half million.

If you have trouble telling boy-teen-agers from girl-teen-agers, you'd have even more difficulty with oysters. These bivalves are ambisexual—that is, they change sex several times during their lifetime. In this year, her next year, him again another year.

Their husbands, however, plow in the fields only from 9 a.m. until noon, and then knock off for the day. Despite their long hours of labor, few Moroccan women ever seek divorce. Any other man they married would expect them to work just as hard.

Cuba Returns Plane But No Passengers

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Eighty-six passengers of an American jetliner hijacked to Cuba returned to the United States today aboard a mercy plane normally used on "freedom flights" to ferry Cuban refugees to Miami.

The chartered plane landed at Miami International Airport at 12:28 p.m., EDT, and the passengers were taken into a quarantine building for questioning and clearance.

By DENNIS FRIEL
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A hijacked Northwest Orient Airlines jet returned here from Havana today but 86 passengers remained stranded in Cuba.

Cuban authorities refused to allow the passengers to return on the three-engine 727 jet, claiming Havana's 10,000-foot runway was too short for a safe takeoff.

A chartered, four-engine propeller plane, an Alifair International DC7B was dispatched to Varadero, Cuba, to fly the passengers to U.S. soil.

A Federal Aviation Administration official in Miami said that under the most adverse conditions 6,000 to 7,000 feet would be safe and 10,000 feet is "more than enough."

The hijacker was in the front row of the first class section when stewardess Margaret Burt asked him to fasten his seat belt.

"He grabbed my wrist and put a gun on me," said Miss Burt.

"About 100 miles north of Miami one of the stewardesses called to me and said, 'One of the men in the first class cabin has a gun,'" said Simonson.

"Then there was a heavy pound at the door. I had to open the door for safety."

"A Latin-looking man about 35 or 40 with a gun told me, 'Go to Cuba. Go to Havana,'" the pilot continued. "He appeared nervous but when he realized I was going to Havana he became calm."

Gas Line Cut in Area of Glenwood

GLENWOOD, Ark. (AP) — Fifty extra Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. employees were pressed into service Monday after a Highway Department grader sliced into a six-inch gas transmission line disrupting service to about 1,000 Arkla customers.

An Arkla spokesman said Monday that the workmen had begun restoring service and that the job should be completed within three or four hours.

The transmission line was located about six miles northeast of Glenwood on U.S. 70. Service was disrupted to customers in Glenwood, Mount Ida, Black Springs, Caddo Gap, Norman and Amity.

Penalties Stiff for Inmates

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP)—Stiff penalties were handed down by the state Penitentiary Disciplinary Committee Monday for the 17 Cummins Prison Farm inmates who participated in a three-day sit-down strike last week.

State Prison Supt. Victor Urban said that all of the "good time" accumulated by the inmates since incarceration had been removed.

Urban also said that for 30 days the inmates would be placed in isolation, live on a restricted diet, lose all privileges and be placed on special work details.

The action came after a hearing at which all pleaded guilty to charges of "refusing to work and insubordination," Urban said.

The action was commended by the state Board of Correction Monday night.

Russia Extends Olive Branch to U.S., May Have Prickly Thorns

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
The Soviet Union has extended to the United States what looks on the surface like an olive branch, but it may have some prickly thorns.

Moscow has held out to Washington a possibility of agreement to stop what has been called the mad escalation of nuclear weaponry. The United States is jumping at the chance to make some progress in this field.

Progress may be possible, just as it was possible to limit nuclear testing and to achieve a nuclear nonproliferation treaty. There are huge prospective benefits for both sides in a new agreement.

At the same time, the context in which the offer was extended by Moscow suggests a sort of defensive peace offensive with a number of facets and objectives.

One objective could be to increase pressure on the Americans to make concessions in Vietnam. Another could be to place the United States, before world opinion, in the role of the main obstacle to a secure peace. Yet another could be to divert attention from Communist-ruled Eastern Europe, about which Moscow, from its many pronouncements on the subject, seems enormously worried.

The United States probably will examine all possibilities while going ahead with the talks, on the theory that the Soviet Union has much to gain in scaling down the astronomical costs of the nuclear weapons race. It may take time and much talk to achieve a new agreement, but if both sides want one, it likely will be considered well worth the effort.

The shills ahead are clearly

Significant Fossil Is Found, May Relate to Evolution of Man

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The discovery of a significant new fossil, perhaps related to the evolution of man, was announced today at the second International Congress of Primatology.

The announcement—by Dr. Elwyn L. Simons of Yale University and Dr. S. R. K. Chopra of Panjab University, Chandigarh, India—came in a paper prepared for delivery by Simons to the congress, attended by some 300 scientists from 15 nations.

Simons said the discovery is that of "an excellently preserved jaw of a new kind of giantopithecus of the Middle Pliocene Age."

Simons explained that the giantopithecus is a form of primate—the order of mammals which includes man, apes and monkeys—and said the Middle Pliocene Age dates back some five million to 10 million years.

Simons said the find appears to be "the oldest jaw recovered to date in the old world of an animal related to the great apes and man which shows pronounced reduction of front tooth size."

Sources interpreted this to indicate some humanoid tendencies.

"Even if it is not related to any later primates other than the Chinese giantopithecus, the new Indian discovery is important because fossils—whether of ape or human affinity—are almost unknown from the Middle and Late Pliocene deposits of the old world," Simons said in a statement.

He also said that the find is "the most complete mandible, or lower jawbone, of an ape found in Europe or Asia in tertiary rocks since 1876."

The new discovery was made about 30 miles north of Blasapur

U.S. Planes Again Slam N. Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force B52 bombers attacked the southernmost part of North Vietnam with the heaviest saturation raids of the war Monday and Tuesday.

Wave after wave of America's biggest bombers—75 planes in all flying from bases in Okinawa, Thailand and Guam—unleashed more than four million pounds of explosives on enemy targets just above South Vietnam's border.

Each B52 carried about 54,000 pounds of 500- and 750-pound bombs.

Nine missions of five planes each hit just inside North Vietnam. Another six missions struck the northern half of the demilitarized zone.

The main targets were North Vietnamese storage areas, caves, bunkers and artillery sites. One aim was to wipe out enemy big guns that have been steadily hammering U.S. combat bases and supply lines just below the eastern flank of the DMZ and firing at allied warships offshore. Another objective was to stem the increasing flow of war materials to enemy troops in South Vietnam.

Such heavy B52 strikes sometimes have signaled a massive American ground sweep. It is most unlikely that American troops plan a sweep into the northern half of the DMZ or above it. But the B52s could be softening up the enemy's artillery to limit their reaction to other U.S. offensives along the frontier.

U.S. sources said the storage areas—caves and bunkers—supply both North Vietnamese infiltrators, headed south and the artillery crews attacking South Vietnam's frontier.

The sources pointed out that enemy artillery some of which has a range of 16 miles, has been harassing the big allied supply bases of Dong Ha and Cua Viet, at the eastern end of the DMZ. Dong Ha is also headquarters of the U.S. 3rd Marine Division and the nerve center for allied combat operations along the DMZ.

Despite 3,656 missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle by smaller fighter-bombers in June—an average of 122 a day—U.S. intelligence sources say the enemy is pouring more supplies and troops into South Vietnam than ever before.

In South Vietnam, only one significant ground action was reported Monday as a general lull continued.

In a day of fighting three miles southeast of the nearly abandoned combat base at Khe Sanh, 157 North Vietnamese were killed, U.S. Marines reported. A Marine company clashed with one enemy force in the area and called in air strikes and artillery. U.S. pilots also found a second enemy group nearby.

With the North Vietnamese forces under heavy air attack, the Marines reported two of their own men killed and 11 wounded.
